The coal found at White Oaks is as good if not superior to the Capitan product, and as soon as a rail-road reaches the town the coal measures will be worked on a large scale.

But it is not only upon its mineral products that Lincoln county depends. It is a fine stock raising country, and its orchards produce the finest fruit in New Mexico. Over the line in Otero county, and Samples on Application at Tularosa, peach trees were in bloom in February. Water, however, is the great necessity for further developing the country. The artesian well drilled at Capitan, and that spouted 20 feet above the surface, is an indication that Lincoln county is in the artesian belt. The forests in the White and the Capitan mountains should be preserved. as their destruction would almost dry up the water courses, along which there are fertile ranches. The timber is also
